Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 16 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Heavy showers possible overnight. Turning dry with sunny spells Thursday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Cloudy this evening with a little rain or drizzle. Turning dry for most overnight but some heavy and possibly thundery showers could move into southern and eastern areas during the early hours. Minimum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Thursday:
Heavy showers in the east quickly clearing to leave a mostly dry day. Although initially cloudy, skies will gradually clear from the north, providing sunny spells for most later on. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Dry with sunny spells on Friday. A mixture of sunny spells and a few showers on Saturday. Heavy and possibly thundery showers Sunday. Temperatures around normal throughout.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.